The barbecue given Saturday to raise money to buy rifles for the cadets of the Training School was an immense success, there being four thousand people present. Speeches of a non-political character were made by Congressman E. E. Settle, of Owen, G. R. Keller, of Carlisle, Claude M. Thomas, of Paris, and Col. Wm. Moore, of Harrison. The committee will clear $400 which will be ample to purchase the equipment of guns. There was plenty to eat for everybody, and all of the booths and privileges made money. The crowd was probably the largest ever seen in Millersburg, and it was very orderly, not an intoxicated man being seen or an arrest being made. Millersburg people gained fresh laurels as entertainers, everybody being well pleased with the day's entertainment.

NEW REGIMENTS.

No Delay Will Be Allowed in Enlisting and Equipping Them.

The New Regiments Will Increase the Strength of the Army to 95,045 Men, Being Only 4,893 Short of Authorized Number.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—"The policy of the war department" said Secretary Root Thursday "is to furnish Gen. Otis with all the troops and supplies that he can use and which are necessary to wind up the insurrection in the Philippines in shortest possible time."

The secretary was speaking of the 10 regiments which were called out Thursday by order of the president. He said that no delay would be allowed in enlisting, equipping and supplying the new regiments, nor in transporting them as well as the other regiments already organized to the Philippines as soon as they were needed for active operations. If the present number of transports are insufficient more will be procured.

The men already enlisted for the Philippine service will be sent at once and the new regiments will be forwarded as fast as they are organized and needed. While there has been some suggestion that the new regiments will be used as a reserve force, it may be stated positively that these regiments as well as more if they can be used will be sent to reinforce Gen. Otis.

Secretary Root sent a copy of the order of Thursday to the various departments of the army, and they at once began preparations for supplying the new organizations.

Within half an hour the ordnance bureau had sent orders to the different arsenals directing that complete outfits of arms and ordnance supplies for each regiment be sent to rendezvous where they are to be organized. The quartermaster's department gave orders for supplying tents, clothing and other equipments furnished by that department, while the commissary department ordered a sufficient supply of rations to be on hand to feed the troops as fast as they arrive. The medical department was also directed to see that supplies were sent. The regiments will be recruited with the same care exercised in enlisting the first ten regiments.

The districts which were not very thoroughly covered in recruiting for the first regiments will be visited by the officers in the new organizations. It is the intention of the department to have the regiments give more attention to firing than any other feature of the drill. The men will be armed as are the regular infantry regiments, with the magazine army rifle.

The selection of the majors and company officers for the regiments is now occupying the attention of the secretary and the men are being chosen from among the volunteers who were called out in the Spanish war. The officers will be distributed as equitably as possible among the different states, but the efficiency and records of the men will govern to a great extent in their selection.

It appears from Thursday's orders that the ten new regiments are to be mainly recruited in New England and the middle and central western states. Kansas and Pennsylvania have apparently been selected as the best field for recruits. It is said that no special effort is to be made to secure recruits in the southern states.

Thursday's action will add 13,090 men to the enlisted strength of the army and increases the total strength of the army to 95,045 men, being only 4,893 men short of the total authorized volunteer establishment of 35,000. It is stated at the department that the number of volunteers already called into service is regarded as amply sufficient to meet all possible needs of the army, and that there is no possibility that the remaining 4,893 volunteers will be called for.

BABE WAS UNHURT.

"The Hogs Are Eating My Child" Cried Mrs. Fred Lawyer, Near Washington, Ind., and Dropped Dead.

WASHINGTON, Ind., Aug. 18.—Mrs. Fred Lawyer, who resides six miles from here, left her two and three-year-old children at home alone Thursday morning, while she visited a neighbor. Suddenly she heard the cries of a child.

"The hogs are eating my baby," she cried, as she sprang to her feet, and started on a run toward her home. Mrs. Lawyer had gone but a short distance when she fell to the ground unconscious, and in 20 minutes died. Heart disease was brought on by fright, the doctors say.

The child whose cries had caused its mother's death was merely crying because angry at its little brother.

THE RACE PROBLEM.

Bishop L. H. Holsey, of Texas, Has a Scheme to Colonize Them and Erect Negro States

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—At the meeting of the colored men's convention Friday, Bishop L. H. Holsey, of Texas, proposed to the members an entirely new scheme for the solution of the race problem. His idea is to have the Negroes build up a separate government of their own, but instead of deporting them to Africa, as advocated by Bishop Turner, of Georgia, he would have this mecca of the colored man located within the United States.

Bishop Holsey explains his proposition as follows:

There is but one way to solve this problem and that is separation and segregation. That is, the Negro race must occupy a state or states and hold territory to themselves. To make this movement effective 1,500,000 voters should sign a petition to congress to set apart a sufficient amount of the public domain with proper legislative restrictions by which a state or states may be erected which will be distinctly Negro states, having all the rights, powers, privileges, functions and political facilities given other states in the union.

If this can be accomplished the black man would derive all the benefits and advantages for development that make a people intelligent, thoughtful and noble.

The removal of the Negro to such a state or states would settle the great problem as far as the Negro is concerned, and would relieve the south of many a side issue in the social and political world.

When asked what portion of the United States had been selected by the advocates of the scheme, Bishop Holsey replied: "Oklahoma and New Mexico have been mentioned, but we have not got so far with the project that we feel in a position to select any particular territory."

ON CONDITION.

M. Guerin Will Surrender on His Own Conditions and Refuses to Accept Those Proposed by Gen. Jacquay.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—M. Guerin decided Friday night to energetically maintain his own propositions and refused to accept those proposed by Gen. Jacquay.

M. Guerin's decision not to surrender was delivered after a deputation of the national defense group had waited on him and informed him of the contents of the semi-official note.

Gen. Jacquay and M. Firmin Faure, revisionist and anti-Semite, a deputy from Oran, Algeria, had numerous interviews during the day with members of the chamber of deputies and also with Premier Waldeck-Rousseau, whereupon Gen. Jacquay submitted his proposition for surrender.

It is now said M. Lasies, deputy from the Condon district of the Gers, has decided to discontinue further negotiations with M. Guerin. Gen. Jacquay, who is a republican member of the chamber of deputies, is also discouraged and has left Paris.

A semi-official note issued Friday night says:

"Having consideration for humanity above all other things, the government from the beginning discarded the idea of storming M. Guerin's house or the seizure of the accused by mere force. Measures for preventing M. Guerin from communicating with the outside world, as well as preventing or dispersing all assemblages, will be maintained, however, as long as possible."

PARIS, Aug. 19.—A strict blockade has been established in the Rue De Chabrol and the authorities Saturday morning begun a regular siege of the house in which M. Guerin and his anti-Semite colleagues have entrenched themselves.

HORRIBLE MURDER.

Boy Swung Up From a Barn Rafter at Murray City—Two Men Arrested and Held on Suspicion.

MURRAY CITY, O., Aug. 19.—George Simko, 14, was found dead in a barn by his sister Friday. Saloonist John Namet, his stepfather, sent him out to feed the horses.

The young man being at the barn so long, his sister went out to see what was wrong, finding him dead in the haymow. Foul play was suspected. Search was made and a rope was found, which showed that the boy had been hanged and cut down.

At the coroner's inquest it was found that the boy's neck was broken. Marks around the neck also show prints of the rope. Two men were seen at the barn just before the boy was found.

Two arrests have been made, Rube and Mohlon Lanning, from New Pittsburgh, O. They were seen to go through the saloon toward the barn. Marshal Wm. Channell, a Surtos City deputy, made the arrests.

Business Portion Destroyed.

BOISE, Ida., Aug. 19.—The town of Placerville, in Boise county, was wiped out by fire. The business portion of the place was destroyed and most of the residences. The loss is estimated at $250,000.

First Ten Regiments Full.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The number of enlisted men Thursday was 309, making a total of 14,429. Even with the discharges that have been made there are a sufficient number to fill the first ten regiments.

RIOTS IN PARIS.

Serious Disturbances Occurred Recalling Some Aspects of the Commune.

Church of St. Joseph Almost Completely Gutted and Valuable Paintings Destroyed—Many Were Hurt Fighting the Police.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—Paris was Sunday the scene of most serious disturbances, recalling some aspects of the commune. In response to an appeal of the journal Le Peuple and La Petite Republique, groups of anarchists and socialists gathered about 3 o'clock in the afternoon in the Place de la Republique. The police had taken precautions and there seemed no danger of disorders.

Sebastian Faure and Faberot, well known revolutionary anarchists, were the ringleaders, Faure, standing on the pedestal of the statue which rises in the center of the Place de la Republique, addressed the crowd. Among other things he said that the anarchists should be masters of the streets. The police then interfered and dislodged Faure and Faberot, making three arrests. The crowd at this point dispersed, but a column of demonstrators, headed by Faure and Henri D'Horr, made for the Place de la Nation.

The police broke through the column and a struggle for the mastery followed. Shots were fired and M. Goullier, commissary of police, was twice stabbed with a knife.

This threw the police into momentary confusion. The mob reassembled and ran toward the Place de la Nation.

In the meantime the anarchist mob retraced its course to the Place de la Republique, smashing the windows of religious edifices on the way.

Suddenly, either at the word of command or in obedience to impulse, the column made a loop and curved toward the Church of St. Ambrose, where the rioters smashed the windows.

Proceeding thence toward the Faubourg Du Temple, at the corner of the Rue Darboy and the Rue St. Mauri-Popincourt, they formed up into a compact body. Hatchets were suddenly produced, with long knives stolen from the counters of shops, and a concerted rush was made upon the church of St. Joseph. The aged sacristan, seeing the mob hastily closed the outer gates, but these were soon forced with hatchets and bars of iron. The massive oaken doors were then attacked.

According to the first account the wild horde burst into the church, which instantly became a scene of pillage and sacrilege. Altars and statues were hurled to the floor, and smashed; pictures were rent, candlesticks, ornaments and hosts from high altars were thrown down and trampled under foot. The crucifix above was made the target for missiles, and the figure of a Saviour was fractured in several places. Then, while rancorous voices sang the "Carmagnole" the chairs were carried outside, piled up and set on fire in the center of the square fronting the church.

When this stage was reached the crucifix was pulled down and thrown into the flames. Suddenly the cry was raised that the statue of the Virgin had been forgotten, and the crowd returned and tore this down also.

Meanwhile the sacristan, who had been captured by the anarchists, escaped and called the police and republican guards, who promptly arrived with many constables. They were compelled to fall back in order to form up into line of defense, as the anarchists attacked them fearfully with knives. At length the officers began to gain the mastery. A score of anarchists took refuge in an adjacent house. Others entrenched themselves in the belfry and fiercely defended themselves by showering missiles on the republican guards, but finally these were dislodged. Twenty anarchists were arrested, taken to the police station, searched and found to be carrying revolvers, loaded sticks and knives.

When the police entered the church the anarchists had just set fire to the pulpit. The interior of the edifice was a complete wreck. Several valuable old pictures that can never be replaced were ruined. About 10 o'clock disorders occurred on the Boulevard de Magenta. Boulevard de Strasbourg. Several revolver shots were fired, but nobody was injured.

Up to 1 o'clock Monday morning 380 persons have been reported injured, including several policemen. No one as far as known was injured by firearms. Nearly all were hurt by being crushed or trodden under foot. A body of rioters who had taken refuge in the courtyard of Gare d'Est was expelled by the police, who made 25 arrests. Quiet has now been restored.

Reed's Resignation.

PORTLAND, Me., Aug. 21.—Reed's resignation will be sent to the governor of Maine this week to take effect September 4. The special election to elect a successor to Mr. Reed in this district will be held about the middle of October.

Hensley Won Out.

MANION, O., Aug. 21.—After a close fight Dr. J. L. Hensley received the endorsement of the republican central committee for representative for the Marion-Morrow district.

BACILLUS ICTEROIDES.

The Commission Appointed by the President to Investigate Cause of Yellow Fever Reports.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The report of the commission appointed by the president in 1897 from the marine hospital service staff to investigate the nature of yellow fever was Friday made public by Surgeon General Wyman. The commission was composed of Surgeon Eugene Wasdin and Past Assistant Surgeon Geddings, both yellow fever experts.

The conclusions of the commission are summarized as follows: First, That the micro organism discovered by Prof. Giuseppe Sanarelli, of the university of Bologna, Italy, and by him named "Bacillus icteroides," is the cause of yellow fever.

Second, That yellow fever is naturally infectious to certain animals, the degree varying with the species; that in some rodents local infection is very quickly followed by blood infection; and that, while in dogs and rabbits there is no evidence of this subsequent invasion of the blood, monkeys react to the infection the same as man.

Third, That infection takes place by way of the respiratory tract, the primary colonization in this tract giving rise to the earlier manifestations of the disease.

Fourth, That in many cases of the disease, probably a majority, the primary infection or colonization in the lungs is followed by a "secondary infection" or a secondary colonization of this organism in the blood of the patient. This secondary infection may be complicated by the instantaneous passage of other organisms into the blood, or this complication may arise during the last hours of life.

Fifth, That there is no evidence to support the theory advanced by Prof. Sanarelli that this disease is primarily a septicemia, inasmuch as cases do occur in which the bacillus icteroides can not be found in the blood or organs in which it might be deposited therefrom.

Sixth, That there exists no causal relationship between the bacillus "X," of Sternberg, and this highly infectious disease, and that the bacillus "X" is frequently found in the intestinal contents of normal animals and of man, as well as in the urine and the bronchial secretion.

Seventh, That so far as our commission is aware, the bacillus icteroides has never been found in any body other than one infected with yellow fever, and that whatever may be the cultural similarities between this and other micro-organisms, it is characterized by a specificity which is distinctive.

Eighth, That the bacillus icteroides is very susceptible to the influences injurious to bacterial life; and that its ready control by the processes of disinfection, chemical and mechanical, is assured.

Ninth, That the bacillus icteroides produces in vitro as well as in vivo, a toxin of the most marked potency, and that, from our present knowledge, there exists a reasonable possibility for the ultimate production of an antiserum more potent than that of Prof. Sanarelli.

PATROLLING THE COAST.

The Santo Domingo Government Approves of the Arrival of Jimenez, the Leader of the Revolution.

KINGSTON, Jamaica, Aug. 19.—Advices from Santo Domingo say the government there is growing desperately apprehensive of the arrival of Jimenez, leader of the revolution, who is momentarily expected. His arrival, it was added, will completely turn popular opinion, which has been partly undecided. Consequently the chief object of the government is to intercept Jimenez, and a number of armed vessels are patrolling the coast with orders to search every strange vessel and capture Jimenez under any flag, armed or not.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Aug. 19.—The Dominican agents are rapidly recruiting expeditions in this part of the island, particularly on the north coast. Orders were received from Havana Friday to hold the men recently captured at Baracoa pending an investigation.

All trading schooners are closely watched. Thursday the tug Adonis was armed and sent to Guantanamo to patrol the coast. It is certain that several expeditions have been able to get away without any interference, but Gen. Leonard Wood, the military governor, is determined to do all in his power to enforce neutrality.

Prices of Meats Raised.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Prices for all meats for the consumers were raised from two to three cents per pound at a mass meeting of the Retail Butchers' association of this city Friday night. These advanced prices will go into effect Saturday.

The Forty-Second Regiment.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 19.—A telegram was received Friday night by Congressman Alexander from Secretary of War Root to the effect that one of the new volunteer regiments, the 42d, will be organized and stationed at Fort Porter, in this city.

No Hope for Judge Hilton's Recovery.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Judge Hilton at a late hour Friday night was still in a comatose state and believed to be gradually sinking. There is no hope of his recovery.

CAME TOGETHER.

Two Trolley Cars on the Norristown Line Collide.

The Railway is a Single Track Road—It Is Said the Motorman Failed to Wait at the Switch for the Arrival of the Other Car.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—A head-on collision between two trolley cars occurred Sunday on the Norristown, Chestnut Hill and Foxborough railway, in Plymouth township, Marion county, a few miles north of this city. Thirty persons were injured. The following are believed to be fatally hurt and in the Charity hospital at Norristown.

John Parson, Philadelphia, internal injuries and several ribs broken.

William Hartstine, West Point, Pa., internal injuries and ribs broken.

Mrs. Bridget Nunan, seriously injured about the body.

Others badly hurt, but not fatally injured, are:

Mrs. Julia Moeslin, Norristown, and Miss Alice McGuigan, Philadelphia, who are also in the hospital.

The railway is a single track road with switches. The passengers of the south bound car assert that the motorman failed to wait at the switch for the arrival of the car going north, and the accident resulted.

PHILIPPINE QUESTION.

Adm. Dewey Believes It Will Be Solved Soon—The Inhabitants Are Capable of Self-Government.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The Naples correspondent of the Daily News telegraphs the substance of an interview he had with Adm. Dewey there during the admiral's visit. Adm. Dewey said he believed the Philippine question would shortly be solved. In his judgment the inhabitants were capable of self-government, and the only way to settle insurrection and to insure prosperity was to concede it to them. He declared that he was never in favor of violence toward the Filipinos, and remarked that after autonomy had been conceded annexation might be talked of. When asked whether a conflict between Germany and the United States over the Philippines were possible, Admiral Dewey replied, according to the correspondent: "It is impossible to foresee the unforeseeable."

INSURGENTS ROUTED.

One Hundred of Them Driven From Their Intrenchments by Lieut. Cole and 80 Men of the Sixth Infantry.

MANILA, Aug. 21.—One lieutenant of the 12th infantry was killed and another was seriously wounded while reconnoitering Saturday evening north of Angeles. The Americans encountered a large force of insurgents and drove them from their positions.

Lieut. Cole, of the 6th infantry, with 80 men encountered 100 insurgents entrenched in the mountains of the island of Negros and routed them after an hour and a half of severe fighting. The Americans had three men slightly hurt. Nineteen dead insurgents were counted in the trenches.

Six rifles and a quantity of reserve ammunition were captured.

The insurgents recently cut the cable in Laguna bay, leading to Calamba, on the south shore of the lake, but the break has been repaired.

MAJ. HARRISON ILL.

He Has Yellow Fever and is in a Bad Condition—His Case is the First to Occur at Cristo, Cuba.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Aug. 21.—Maj. Russell B. Harrison, inspector general, is critically ill with yellow fever. The disease has progressed for three days although not pronounced yellow fever until Sunday afternoon. The case is the first to occur at Cristo whither headquarters was removed last month to escape infection.

Of late the quarantine rules have been relaxed, owing to the fact that there have been no new cases in the city and officers from headquarters have been in the habit of coming to Santiago daily, returning to headquarters at night. Maj. Harrison has been isolated but not brought to the fever hospital.

Mysterious Shooting in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 21.—While driving with his family through Holmesburg, a suburb of this city, Frank Radcliffe was killed by a bullet fired by some unknown person about 7 o'clock Sunday night. The ball struck him in the breast and he fell dead in his wife's arms. The occupants of the carriage heard no report nor could they see any one in the vicinity. The police are investigating the case.

Gov. Tanner Ill.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 21.—Sunday night Dr. George N. Kreider, the attending physician, said that Gov. Tanner is suffering with malarial and his fever is high. He will probably be unable to attend to the duties of his office for a week.

Epidemic Spreading.

MADRID, Aug. 21.—It is reported here that a case of the plague has developed at Figuera, Portugal, and there is rumor of a death from the disease at Barcelona.

SUNKHAZER FLIES OF MAINE.

Worse Than Jersey Mosquitoes and Kissing Bugs Have No Chance with Them.

Since reading in the newspapers of the kissing bug and his doings all the people in rural Maine have taken to capturing bugs and insects of all sorts and bringing the specimens to town for examination by newspaper men and naturalists. Countless are the kinds of bugs that have been taken to Bangor in bottles, boxes and preserve jars, and the captors all seem to be sorely disappointed when told that instead of the genuine kissing bug they have a moth killer, a lace-winged fly, or something quite common and harmless.

A man came from Veazie to Bangor the other day with a ferocious-looking bug corked up in a preserve jar and claimed the credit of having captured the first kissing bug in that part of the country. It was not the famous kissing bug that he had, but a native bug somewhat resembling a small lobster with wings.

"I don't care a hang," declared the Veazie man, when told that he must try again. "These fellows kin lick the stuffin' out of Sunkhazers, and that's what none of your common bugs kin do."

Not many people living far away from Bangor know what a "Sunkhazer" is like. It is a ferocious big fly that infests the flats and meadows about Sunkhaze deadwater, a place in the Penobscot river where the water is slack and where millions of logs are rafted. The Sunkhazers are the pest of the loggers, upon whom they feast to their heart's content, and nothing can drive them away. They are four times the size of the famed mosquitoes of Jersey, and any Maine man will back up a fair stand-up fight with a Sunkhazer.

Maine folks have, probably, no kissing bugs, but so long as the Sunkhazers survive they will not feel lonesome.—N. Y. Sun.

Fooling the Public.

"I'm about bushed in the matter of curiosities," mused the owner of a small store. "It's a bad habit—this idea of 'drawing trade by making a museum of the window, but I can't stop now—business won't allow it."

A few hours later the soda water trade was rushing. The crowd outside the window gazed until it was thirsty at the remarkable bird that hung in a big cage. The card attached bore a handful of the alphabet hysterically put together and designed for a scientific name. After it were the words: "From Sam."

A few days later the "curiosity" was feeding in the back yard with the rest of the bantam hens.—Detroit Free Press.

Cody Called for a Cut.

Col. Cody, the eminent scout, helped to build a church at North Platte, and was persuaded by his wife and daughter to accompany them to the opening. The minister gave out the hymn, which commenced with the words: "Oh, for ten thousand tongues to sing," etc. The organist, who played by ear, started the tune in too high a key and had to try again. A second attempt ended like the first in failure. "Oh, for ten thousand tongues to sing my great—" came the opening words for the third time, followed by a squeak from the organ and a release into painful silence. "They could contain himself no longer, and blurted out: 'Start it at five thousand, and mebbe some of the rest of us can get in.'—San Francisco Wave.

DREYFUS TRIAL.

Gen. Mercier Says the Prisoner Will Be Condemned.

M. Labori is Anxious to Return to Court Even if He Has to be Carried in an Ambulance—Is Dissatisfied with M. Demange's.

RENNES, Aug. 21.—Gen. Mercier, who was minister of war when Capt. Dreyfus was condemned and who in the present trial is the virtual prosecutor, was called upon Sunday by the correspondent of the Associated Press, who invited him to make a statement of the position of the anti-Dreyfusards.

Although unable to receive the correspondent in person Gen. Mercier sent his oldest son to convey the following expression of his views:

"Gen. Mercier considers it useless to attempt to convert foreign opinion regarding the Dreyfus question, in which, moreover, foreigners have no right to intervene. Foreign people have been misled by their press, which is violently Dreyfusard, for the very good reason that a majority of the foreign newspapers have been bribed by the Jewish syndicate. Gen. Mercier considers anything he might say explaining his position, which is that of a majority of the French people, would be useless. The best reply to Dreyfusard statements abroad will be the condemnation of Dreyfus.

"This condemnation is only a matter of ten days or a fortnight, for condemned Dreyfus certainly will be. Foreigners will then see that their journals have deceived them, for they will recognize that the mass of the French nation, who will receive the news of the conviction of Dreyfus as joyful tidings, is composed of officials and that the majority of the French applaud the condemnation. It will be because it is just and merited."

The Associated Press correspondent then called upon Maitre Labori, who lives within 200 yards of Gen. Mercier, the houses of both being guarded by gendarmes and detectives, who sit in chairs in the roadway in front of the houses.

M. Labori was taking the air in the garden. He has been suffering severely from insomnia, and Sunday was feverish and excited. The wound itself has not made the progress the doctors hoped for, although there had been no relapse. In view of this general condition his medical advisers oppose his going to court Monday, as he had desired. They predict that the exertion would so overtax his strength as to compel him to take to his bed, which he would probably not leave, in that event, for a month.

Tuesday or Wednesday, therefore, will more probably see his reappearance in court. He will be provided with a specially constructed chair that will enable him to conduct the cross-examination at the outset without rising from his seat.

M. Labori is intensely anxious to return to court even if he has to be carried there in an ambulance. He is dissatisfied with M. Demange's conduct of the case thus far, and on his return he intends to have Gen. Mercier and the other generals back on the witness stand. After reading their evidence he is confident of his ability to crush Mercier, and he expects to use the Schneider and Panizzardi telegrams also to confound Mercier.

RENNES, Aug. 21.—The Dreyfus court-martial reconvened Monday morning at the usual hour. Maitre Labori was not present. His doctors considered that it would be inadvisable for him to attempt to take part in Monday's proceedings in view of the danger of a relapse.

The witness was Col. Fabre, who deposed that he had discovered the similarity between the hand writing of the accused and that of the bordereau. He reiterated his conviction of the guilt of Dreyfus, saying: "I am sure he wrote the bordereau."

Looks Like Murder.

PAINEVILLE, O., Aug. 21.—Myron Metcalf, of Willoughby, was found dead at the side of the Cleveland & Painesville suburban car track, a short distance west of that place Sunday night. Railroad officials say he was not struck by any of the cars. There were a number of severe bruises on the head and it is generally believed that he met with foul play.

Schooner Sinks.

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 21.—The four-masted schooner Augustus Palmer, Capt. Haskell, loaded with 2,125 tons of coal from Newport News to Bangor, Me., went ashore Saturday near Thimble light. The sea was running very high, and she immediately sank in four fathoms of water. Capt. Haskell and crew were rescued and brought to Norfolk Sunday afternoon. The Palmer is a total loss.

Asleep on the Track.

FT. WAYNE, Ind., Aug. 21.—John Van Horn, while under the influence of liquor, laid down on the Nickel Plate railroad track at Argos, using the rail for a pillar, and went sound to sleep. The regular freight train ran over him, crushing his head to a pulp. The engineer of the train said that it was impossible for him to stop, and when he noticed the man he blew the whistle, but Van Horn, being in a drunken stupor, did not awaken. Van Horn was single man and about 22 years of age.

GEN. JIMINEZ ARRESTED.

Just as He Was About to Sail From Cienfuegos, Capt. Stamp Arrested Him—Says it is an Outrage.

HAVANA, Aug. 19.—In view of the fact that Col. Bacallao, chief of the secret police, persisted in his declaration that Gen. Juan Isidor Jimenez, the aspirant to the presidency of Santo Domingo, was in Havana, either not having left or having returned to military authorities telegraphed to Cienfuegos instructing Capt. Stamp, collector of customs there, to ascertain whether Jimenez was on the Menendez steamer and to take him under arrest if that should be the case.

Just as the steamer was about leaving Cienfuegos, Capt. Stamp located Jimenez and arrested him. Jimenez denounced the arrest as an outrage. He said he had broken no law and would not yield except to force. Capt. Stamp replied that he was ready to use force if necessary and Jimenez then yielded, remarking that he did so only because he could not help himself.

Senor Frias, mayor of Cienfuegos, refused to make the arrest, claiming that Gen. Jimenez was an old personal friend, whom he had known intimately for years. When Jimenez was taken into custody, Senor Frias was found with a police inspector in close conversation with Jimenez and the latter's secretary; it is believed the mayor was urging him to leave the steamer, to conceal himself and to wait for a better opportunity. Capt. Stamp informed Jimenez that he would make him as comfortable as possible, and after Jimenez and his secretary had packed their trunks they were driven, accompanied by the chief of police and Capt. Stamp, to the Union hotel, where two bedrooms and a diningroom were placed at their disposal.

Gen. Jimenez will be kept under police charge until further advice is received from the governor general. There is much excitement among the people of Cienfuegos over the affair. The sentiment is generally expressed that the authorities had no right to arrest Jimenez, an unarmed citizen, going apparently to Santiago de Cuba, and the point is even made that if he were going to San Domingo, he would only be returning to his native country.

Senor Aybor, a representative of Jimenez, left Cienfuegos for Santiago de Cuba last Tuesday, after remaining at the former place ten days. It is believed he tried to fit out an expedition, as a small schooner was found lying outside the harbor, supposed to be awaiting a cargo of ammunition. Aybor had taken out clearance papers for Key West several days before.

OFF THE BRIDGE.

Portion of a Passenger Train on the Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf Railroad Goes Into Little River.

TEXARKANA, Tex., Aug. 19.—A message has just been received here to the effect that a north-bound passenger train on the Kansas City, Pittsburg & Gulf railroad went into Little river, 50 miles north of here. A switch engine, with crew, has left for the scene. The wreck is between stations, and it is not known how much of the train went off the bridge. It is known, however, that the baggage, express and mail cars went in.

The Shamrock at New York.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The Shamrock, the British yacht that is to compete for the American cup, arrived at New York Friday. After the yacht had anchored in the upper bay Capt. Archie Hogarth, of the Shamrock, said: "The Shamrock behaved beautifully. I am more than satisfied with her. In fact, I am delighted, because my most sanguine anticipations have been more than realized. But I will say this, that gleeful as I am with the behavior of the boat, I was more surprised with the generous reception which she got from the time that we were abreast of Sandy Hook."

Glorot Not the Assassin.

RENNES, Aug. 19.—Glorot, who claims to have been the man who attempted to assassinate M. Labori, was brought to Rennes Friday evening. Col. Picquart, M. Gast and others who saw the would-be assassin, declare Glorot was not the man. The prisoner has written a letter to the police making an alleged confession and glorifying in the crime. The doctors say he is insane.

Yellow Jack at Port Limon, Costa Rica.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—Surgeon General Wyman was Friday notified by Surgeon Carson, stationed at Port Limon, Costa Rica, of the appearance of one case of yellow fever at that place. This is one of the eight American ports, at which the marine hospital service has an official stationed to report promptly on the appearance of yellow fever. This is the first that has been reported at any of the fruit ports this season.

The Children Safe.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 19.—Mrs. Susan Cutter, living in the outskirts of the city, Friday afternoon attached the family horse to a road wagon, and with her three little children started to drive down town. Within a short distance the horse started on a runaway. Mrs. Cutter was thrown out and fatally hurt internally, besides which she suffered a broken arm. The little children clung to the wagon, and after a long run the horse finally turned homeward, where he arrived safely with the little ones unhurt.

"GOING TO BUY A BUGGY."

A Mortgage Given Out of the Way—Typical Story of a Nebraska Farmer's Experience.

A few years ago hard times made the Western farmer deny himself everything save the bare necessities of life. Then came the great crop year of 1897 and with it a story.

A Nebraska farmer carried a mortgage of $12,000 on his property, and it was a burden hard to contend with. The wheat crop in '97 was enormous and prices were high. He appeared at the bank shortly after harvest, pulled out $1,000 and asked for a loan of $200 to enable him to cancel the mortgage note. The banker, who held the note, urged him not to bother about it, but go and buy cattle with his $1,000, feed his corn crop and in that way get the maximum for his product. "No, sir," replied the farmer, "I want to pay that note now. Then when I harvest the corn crop I'm going to pay you back that $200 I just borrowed, and then do you know what I'm going to do?" and his honest face beamed all over with pleasure. "I'm going to buy a buggy!" This little incident tells the story of thousands of others out in Nebraska, and the fact that during the past six months one concern in Chicago shipped to one firm in Omaha alone one hundred and thirty carloads of buggies and carriages, averaging about $22 to the car, makes it very evident that prosperity is with Nebraska. It is a wonderful state with great resources, and the crops of the past few years have put Nebraska farmers in an enviable position.

GETTING A DINNER.

How Two Scheming Rascals Victimized a Stranger on the Paris Boulevard.

The other day a rather amusing scene was witnessed on a Paris boulevard. Two friends of rather excitable temperament perceived quietly sitting at the foot of a table in front of a cafe an enormous dog, with a head, teeth and claws that would have done credit to a lion.

"Well," said one of them, "the owner of that creature need be afraid of nobody with such a protector."

"What, that dog?" said the other. "Why, he wouldn't move a paw."

The dispute grew warm, and the first speaker emphatically declared: "I bet a dinner that you won't venture to touch its master!"

"Not venture, indeed! You shall soon see!" was the quick rejoinder.

So saying, the latter dealt a box on the ears of a gentleman who was drinking a glass of beer at the table where the dog sat.

The gentleman uttered a loud cry and rushed upon his assailant; the dog remained impassive. An explanation followed, and the injured gentleman was informed of the wager in question.

"But the dog isn't mine," he howled, in a tremendous passion.

An hour later, however, you might have observed through the windows of a famous restaurant a little distance away three jovial guests sitting before a sumptuously spread table, and discussing the merits of several bottles of old wine. They were the bettors and their victim.—Tit-Bits.

Chartreuse.

More than 40 plants enter into the composition of the liqueur, chartreuse. The principal one is balm (melissa officinalis), of which from 250 to 500 grammes are present in 100 litres; hyssop in flower, peppermint, Alpine gentian (artemisia glacialis), the seeds and roots of angelica, of each from 125 to 250 grammes; then, in smaller quantities, varying from 15 to 30 grammes, arnica flowers, thyme, balsamite, the buds of the poplar blossom (populus balsamifera), Chinese cinnamon, mace, coriander, aloes, cardamoms, etc. Moreover, each 100 litres contains an alcoholate in which are present, with "majaoline" clove pinks and lavender, four kinds of pepper (long, Jamaica, cubeb and cayenne), pine resin, treacle, hyacinth, balm of nutmeg, kneaded together in Malaga wine. A hundred litres of the liqueur contain about 2,300 grammes of this mixture, and the cost of preparation scarcely exceeds eight francs. The quality and age of the alcohol used in the manufacture are the principal features.—N. Y. Home Journal.

Smallest Capital in Europe.

Cettigue, the capital of the independent principality of Montenegro, would make a poor showing by the side of even the smaller Illinois villages. It consists of two streets and a square. The royal palace, which fronts directly on the street, is not as large as many farm houses, and the royal church, where Montenegro princes are crowned, seats only 100 people. The rest of the houses in the capital are mainly occupied by members of the diplomatic corps, almost all of the European capitals being represented by ministers who have nothing in the world to do but pass the time as best they may. In winter the capital of Montenegro is even more desolate and forlorn. Snow to the depth of four or five feet often covers the streets and keeps the royal and other residents within doors.—Chicago Tribune.

Thirty years ago the sardines and young herring in Canadian waters were sold mostly as fertilizers. In 1897 nearly 1,000,000 boxes of sardines in oil were put on the market. The price paid to fishermen varies extraordinarily, according to catch, season and year, being sometimes as low as six dollars per hoghead and sometimes as high as $100.

There is much French and Belgian capital invested in the principal railway lines of Spain, while England owns many of the shorter lines, and is also at the head of the mining interests.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

The permanent superannuate fund of the Canada Methodist church is now about $251,000, an increase of $20,936 during the past year.

Kansas City has established an institute particularly for substitute teachers, in order that they may be kept up to the modern methods of teaching.

Nearly half of the $1,000,000 ($500,000) which the Presbyterian church of Ireland proposes to raise for a twentieth century fund has already been subscribed.

The railroad department of the Y. M. C. A. in this country comprises 130 auxiliaries, to which is contributed annually $160,000, or five per cent. earnings upon more than $3,000,000.

Dr. Charles Cuthbert Hall, president of Union Theological seminary, New York city, has been appointed to the Haskell lectureship in comparative religion in the University of Chicago.

Dr. Daniel Folkmar, former lecturer in sociology at the University of Chicago, has been appointed professor of anthropology at the new University of Brussels, Belgium, being one of the few Americans who have held a foreign professorship.

Superintendent E. Benjamin Andrews, of the Chicago public schools, has had his life insured for $10,000 for the benefit of a pension fund for teachers. He has made the fund the residuary legatee, and is urging other school officials in Chicago to do likewise.

BREAKING THE SAD NEWS.

Railroad Men on Special Duty to Notify Bereaved Wives When Accidents Occur.

"We formerly left it to some of the employees to inform wives that their husbands had been killed," said a railroad boss, "but now regular men do it—men who know how to break the sad news to widows and orphans at home. I did it myself for 13 years. The company chose me because I was fatherly looking, and I stuck to the job as long as I could, but it's wearing work. To go into a home and hear the wife sing about her work and be compelled to tell her that her Jack's just been killed down in the freight yard takes nerve."

"Of course, I had different ways of breaking the news. Sometimes I asked what time Jim would be home, or where he was going that night, anything to get started, especially if I never knew the woman. Strange to say whenever I came near to the fact, saying 'I heard that Jim was hurt, the women would scream out they were sure he was killed. Then I let them cry awhile, until they'd get ready to ask further about it. It was not so hard after that. I often thought that the women saw so much sorrow in my face from my long serving in the business that they knew what I came for. I tried to look cheerful, but there was a weight in my heart that I couldn't throw off."

"Once called at the home of a young wife. Her husband, an engineer, was killed at a bridge that morning. When she opened the door and looked at me she dropped in a dead faint without saying a word. Afterward she told me that she had taken a nap after breakfast that morning and had seen me in her dream standing in front of her, telling her that Harry was killed. Once the wife I came to warn was making bread. She was up to her elbows in dough. I asked where Mr. Jones lived, walked off and waited for half an hour until she got her bread in the pans, and then I went back and told her the sad story of her husband's death by a cave-in at a culvert. At another house the mother and two children, neatly dressed, were ready to go to a Sunday school picnic. It took nerve to stop them and break the news. I began by saying that there might be rain. It was cloudy. Then I said to the wife she had better not go as Tom might be back from work pretty soon. Then she knew."

"I asked the company to be relieved of my job three times before they found some one to take my place."—N. Y. Sun.

Explaining the Game.

"Would you like to attend the baseball game this afternoon?" asked the city girl of her country cousin who was visiting her.

"Indeed I would," was the reply. "I never saw a game in my life. How is it played?"

"I'll explain it to you," said the fair hostess. "You see it is a game in which grace and skill predominate. The thrower—or pitcher—a dear little fellow, stands in the middle of the block and throws a ball at another, who stands on one corner with a huge cane in his hand. The thrower tries to hit the cane and the other young man tries to swing his cane so that it will be impossible for the thrower to hit it with the ball. Some of the knoekers can't get their canes out of the way quick enough, and when they get hit they have to drop the cane and play tag around the block; but most of the darlings can stand there and never get their canes hit once. The handsome fellow who wears a silver-plated toilet mask and stands just behind the knoekers is called the catcher. He is just too delightfully brave for anything. We girls just cote on the catcher; he's so awfully cute and heroic."—Chicago Evening News.

[Walter Champ in Illustrated Kentuckian] A WOMAN'S MINUTE.

Hubert Hudson held Gladys Gordon's shapely hand in his as they stood in the doorway. They were on the eve of a separation.

"Good bye," he said, with a sigh, "the time will pass very slowly until I see you again. I shall be very lonely, Gladys."

"What are you saying, Hubert," she inquired. "I'm just going in to speak to the dressmaker. I'll return in a minute."

"Farewell, lovely deceiver," he repeated, sadly shaking his head.

Hubert had been there before, and knew the length of Gladys' minutes.

"It means dat yo' Uncle Sam gwine to keep dem Phillipeant Islands wat Adin'ral Dewey took las' year."

"Is yo' in favah of 'spanion, Deacon Johnsing?"

"Yass, indeed, chile. Didn't I heah a speakah say dat in de Phillipeant Islands de watahmillions jes grow wild 'long de roadside, an' chicken is plentiful as flies in Summah time. White folks'll soon be runnin' 'scursions ov-h dere. Hit will be de fines' place in de world to hol' campmeetin's. Cose Ise in favah of 'spanion."

A VERY REMARKABLE WIFE

"My son," remarked Mrs. Mark Dawn, "is the happy husband of a most remarkable and economical woman."

"He is a very fortunate man, indeed," observed Mrs. Mermet.

"Yes," continued Mrs. Mark Dawn, "their house is beautiful for $29.83—regular $30 rent. The reception hall is lighted by a perfectly lovely lamp which she bought for $2.98, reduced from $3, which stands on a dear little table bought for $3.48, reduced from $3.50. Her lace curtains were a bargain at $4.98, regular price $5. Then they have the sweetest little stove which only cost $7.49, reduced from $7.50. My daughter-in-law is a regular treasure, I think."

"Pray, what was her maiden name?" inquired Mrs. Mermet.

"Estelle d' Bargayne."

"Oh, yes, I remember her. She was twenty-seven, marked down from thirty-five. They are living in very reduced circumstances, to judge from your conversation."

THE Louisville & Nashville has inaugurated a through sleeping car line to Bristol, Tenn. Sleeper will leave Cincinnati daily at 7:55 p. m. from Grand Central Station, via K. C. Fine Figure

Many women lose their girlish forms after they become mothers. This is due to neglect. The figure can be preserved beyond question if the expectant mother will constantly use during the whole period of pregnancy. The earlier its use is begun, the more perfectly will the shape be preserved.

Mother's Friend not only softens and relaxes the muscles during the great strain before birth, but helps the skin to contract naturally afterward. It keeps unsightly wrinkles away, and the muscles underneath retain their pliability. Mother's Friend is that famous external liniment which banishes morning sickness and nervousness during pregnancy; shortens labor and makes it nearly painless; builds up the patient's constitutional strength, so that she emerges from the ordeal without danger. The little one, too, shows the effects of Mother's Friend by its robustness and vigor.

Sold at drug stores for $1 a bottle.

Send for our finely illustrated book for expectant mothers.

Miss Barlow arranged with Miss Fannie Johnson to represent The Lost Cause in Paris.

THE L. & N. will run a special train from this city to London, Ky., this morning on account of the opening of the Republican campaign by Gen. W. S. Taylor at that place to-day. The train will leave Paris at 6:25, and will leave London this afternoon at five, arriving here about 9:30. Conductor Throckmorton will have charge of the train.

THE tailor shop of Ernest Frazier, formerly of this city, and the office of the Kentucky Gazette, in Lexington, were considerably damaged Saturday morning by a fire caused by the explosion of a gasoline stove. Editor Gratz had his hands badly burned in trying to save his books. He carried $1,700 insurance. Mr. Frazier carried $200 insurance.

Colored Baptist Association.

THE General Association of Colored Baptists of Kentucky was in session in this city last week, the meetings closing Sunday. There were a large number delegates in attendance. Excursion trains were run here Sunday from five cities—435 excursionists coming from Louisville, 275 from Richmond, 479 from Lexington, 360 from Maysville and about 300 from Covington and Cincinnati. The train from Cincinnati had 625 passengers, half of them going through to Richmond and Winchester.

One of the colored delegates had a peculiar experience Sunday night. He preached in one of the colored churches and in his sermon criticised the Methodists, after which he went to his temporary home. His Methodist hostess reached home first, however, and was waiting for him at the door with his grip. He handed him, saying that he had better get entertainment from his Baptist brothers.

A Parisian in New York.

John W. Keller, a native of this city, who is now filling the important position of President of the Board of Charities in New York City, at a salary of $7,500 per year, is a candidate for Sheriff of New York County. The office formerly paid the Sheriff about $5,000 per year, but now the salary is $42,000. The Journal says: "Commissioner Keller is an able, brainy and courteous man. He is a good public speaker and a fine writer. Mr. Croker is fond of him."

Mr. Keller is very kindly remembered by many old friends in this city, who hope that he may win his race. His present position is one of the most powerful in New York City.

New Confidence Game.

A new confidence game is being worked on country people by three swindlers. A stranger comes to a farm house and asks for lodging, and along about midnight a man and woman come to the same house hunting a preacher to marry them. The first stranger happens to be a minister, of course, and performs the ceremony, and the farmer and his wife are asked to sign the certificate, which at afterwards turns up as a promissory note for a comfortable sum. The swindle is an ingenious scheme, and farmers would do well to keep it in mind.

Killing at Clintonville.

While looking for a law-breaker near Clintonville Saturday night Constable Joe Donahoo discovered a large crap game and arrested the entire party. A moment later someone blew out the lamp and the players literally broke through the wall of the sheet iron building trying to escape. Constable Donahoo called three times to Will Clayton to halt and then fired at him. The ball went through his back, causing his death Sunday morning.

Coroner H. H. Roberts held an inquest yesterday. The following is the verdict:

"We, the undersigned Coroner's Jury, of Bourbon county, having duly inquired into as to whom and by what means Will Clayton, whose dead body we found near Clintonville, Bourbon County, Ky., on the 21st day of August, 1899, came to his death.

"After having examined said body and heard the evidence, we do find the deceased came to his death from a pistol shot wound in the hands of Joe Donahoo, and we further find that the shooting was justifiable as the deceased Will Clayton was resisting arrest of an officer of the law.

A Serious Question.

The servant question is getting to be a serious matter in Paris and other Kentucky towns. If a family is lucky enough to have a cook during the week it's a ten to one chance that it will be cookless on Sunday. The reason is that pic-nic meetings have been held every Sunday during the summer at Paris, Cynthia or Millersburg, and every one who can get the price goes on the excursion. Sunday one of these meetings was held in Paris and upwards of a thousand colored people from Maysville, Carlisle, Millersburg, Cynthia, Winchester, Lexington and Georgetown came to Paris in carriages or on excursions. Many of these people, who had money to ride around town in carriages, rubber tired buggies and traps, will be applying to local charity committees this winter for aid.

Many families almost have to beg their cooks to work during the summer, besides paying them good wages.

Paris people should try the experiment of importing white help. The colored people who have money to blow in on excursions and rubber tired vehicles and at camp meetings in summer should be marked for reference when they apply this winter for aid from the County or the Elk Charity Fund.

WAVE PRINTS.

Where ocean-seeking rivers gently glide,
To join the spreading harbor's restless tide,
While flashing gems of living sunlight glow,
And ever onward laughing bubbles rise:
Behold far, far beneath the shifting tide,
Clear ripple-marks the stainless sea sands show.
A record fair, traced faintly below,
Of waves that toss and break and then subside,
So when the fitful waves of fortune break
Upon the bosom of life's restless sea,
As cloud drift melts to blue without a sign,
Deep written on the heart's pure scroll they make.
A record plain, whose lights and shadows decree,
Self's chilling fate, or love's warm glow divine.

CHAPTER IV.—CONTINUED.

We sat in silence for some minutes, each absorbed in his own thoughts. The heat from the fire had warmed the hut so that the blue steam began to rise from my damp clothes. My companion reclined on his elbow, tracing some diagram on the floor with a pointed stick. The rain, which now increased in violence, had almost quenched the log fire, and was invading our shelter, for the roof began to leak. There being no wind the torch burned steadily, throwing sufficient light for us to distinguish each other. I began to wonder what manner of man this was before me, dressed in a motley of court fool and peasant, and my curiosity was aroused to such an extent that for the time I forgot my own troubles. Nevertheless I made no sign of inquiry, knowing there is no means so sure of obtaining information as to seem not to desire it. My new friend kept his eyes fixed on the point of his dagger, the muscles of his cheek-veins being twitching nervously. At length he became conscious of my scrutiny, for, lifting his eyes, he looked me in the face, and then made a motion of his hand toward the wine skin.

"No more, thanks."
"There will be that left for to-morrow before we start."
"Then you also are a traveler?"
"You say you are going to Bucine?" He asked the question in his usual abrupt manner, but his tone was composed.
"It lies on my road."
"And on mine, too. Shall we travel together? I could point out the way."
"Certainly. It is very good of you."
"Well, it is time to sleep, and the torch has burnt to an end."

As he spoke he stretched himself out at full length, and, turning his back to me, appeared to sink into slumber. I watched him for some time by the embers of the torch, wondering if I was wise in accepting his companionship, and then, overpowered by fatigue, lost myself in sleep, heedless of the rain, which dripped in twenty places through the roof.

I slept profoundly until aroused by my shoulder being gently shaken, and, looking up, beheld my host, as I must call him, bending over me. I thought I had slept for a few minutes only, and saw to my surprise that it was well in the morning, and the sun shone brightly. All traces of cloud were gone, though soft billows of mist rolled over the olive gardens, and vineyards of Chianti grape, that stretched towards Montevarchi.

"Heavens, man! How you slept! I was right when I hinted you had a good conscience."
I scrambled up with a hasty "Good-morning," and, a few minutes afterwards, having finished the remains of the wine in the skin, we started off in the direction of Bucine. My companion had politely never inquired my name, and I had been equally reticent. He placed on his head a silken fool's cap, and the bells on it jingled incessantly as he walked along with a jaunty air, at a pace that was remarkable for a man of his age. He seemed to have lost the melancholy that possessed him during the night, and conversed in so cheerful and entertaining a manner that in spite of myself I was interested and withdrawn from my unhappy thoughts. He kept up his mood to Bucine, where, notwithstanding our strange appearance, we attracted, to my relief, less attention than I imagined we should draw.

With appetites sharpened by our walk, we did full justice to the meal I ordered at the only hotel in the place. Here I played host, as a return for my entertainment, and in conversation my acquaintance said that he was bound for Florence. I told him that also was my point, and invited him to bear me company on the road, to which he willingly agreed. I made an attempt here to hire a horse; but not even a donkey was procurable, all available carriage having been seized upon for the army. So once more descending the hill on which Bucine is situated, we forded the river and continued our journey.

At the albergo we heard that a body of troops were foraging along the banks of the Arno, and resolved to make a detour, and, crossing Monte Luco, to keep on the sides of the Chianti hills, if necessary avoiding Montevarchi altogether. My companion maintained his high spirits until we reached the top of the spur of Monte Luco, known to the peasantry as the Virgin's Cradle. Here we stopped to breathe and observe the view. I looked back across the Chiana valley, and let my eye run over the landscape which stretched as far as the Marches. In the blue splash to the south of the rugged and conical hill of Cortona, I recognized Trasimene, and beyond it lay Perugia. I turned to call my friend's attention to the scene, and at first did not perceive where he was. Another glance showed him standing on the edge of the cliff, a little to my left, shaking his clenched hand in the direction of Perugia, whilst on his face was marked every sign of sorrow and hate.

Curious to see what this would result in, I made no attempt to attract his attention, but in a moment he shook off the influence, which possessed him, and rejoined me with a calm brow. We thereupon continued our journey with this difference, that my companion was now as silent as hitherto he had been cheerful. My own dark thoughts too came back to roost, and in a gloom we descended the Cradle, pushing our way through the myrtle with which it was covered, and walked on, holding Montevarchi to our right.

We kept a sharp lookout for the foragers, and, seeing no signs of them, made up our minds, after some consultation, to risk going to Montevarchi, which we reached without mishap a little after noon. It was not my intention to halt there more than an hour or so, which I, hoping that I would have better luck than at Bucine, intended to spend in trying to hire an animal of some kind to ride.

We stopped at the Bell inn, near the gate, and, after a deal of bargaining, which consumed a good hour, the landlord agreed to hire me his mule at first. Just as the matter was settled a dozen or so of troopers rode in, and, spying the mule, in the twinkling of an eye, claimed it for carriage purposes.

It was in vain that the landlord protested that it was his last beast, that it had been hired to the noble cavalieri, meaning me, and many other things beside. The soldiers were deaf to his entreaties, and, although I had more than a mind to draw on the villains, I had the good sense to restrain myself, for the odds were too many against me. I therefore hid my chagrin under a smile, and the mule was led away amidst the lamentations of mine host, who was further put out of pocket by a gallon or so of wine, which the troopers consumed, doubtless in honor of the prize they had taken, neglecting in the true fashion of the capugnes grandes to pay for it. It was a fit lesson to the landlord, for he had not, in his cupidity, bargained for an hour over the hire of the animal, he might have been richer by two crowns and still owned his mule. This it is that avarice finds its own punishment.

On going off, the leader of the troop, a man whom I knew by sight and by reputation as a swashbuckler, if ever there was one, made me a mock salute, saying, in allusion to my quietness in surrendering my claim to the mule: "Adieu, Messer Feather-Cap—may your courage grow as long as your sword!" This taunt I swallowed ruefully, and immediately set about my departure. My companion, who was not mixed up in the altercation, joined me silently, and we followed in the direction taken by the troopers, lured by the malcontents of the innkeeper, who vented his spleen on us as the indirect cause of his misfortune.

The foragers, who, owing to the warmth of the weather, had removed their breast-plates, which were slung to their saddles, were going at a walking pace; and it was amusing to see how the mere sight of their presence cleared the streets. Nothing, however, that they did not appear to be bent on personal injury, we did not think it necessary to go out of our course, or delay our departure until they left the town, and as we walked fast and they went slowly, by the time they had reached the main square, we were not more than a dozen yards behind them.

At this moment we noticed the figure of a woman, apparently blind, for she was guided by a little dog attached to a string. The poor creature was crossing the pavement almost in front of the leader of the troop, and, as she was right in the path of the troopers, we attempted to warn her by shouting, and she stopped irresolutely, hardly knowing which way to turn. The troop leader, without making any effort to avoid her, rode on in a pitiless manner, and she was flung senseless to the ground. In this her hood fell back, uncovering her face, and my companion, suddenly uttering a loud cry, ran forward, and, seizing her in his arms, began to address her with every term of endearment, in the manner of a father to his child.

The troopers halted—discipline it will be observed was not great—and one of them with rough sympathy called to my friend to bear the girl, for so she looked, to the fountain, at the same time that their commander gave a loud order to go on, and to leave off looking at a fool and a beggar. I had, however, made up my mind that there was a little work for me, and, drawing my sword, stepped up to the swashbuckler's horse, and asked for a five-minute's interview there and then.

He burst into a loud laugh. "Corpo di Dio! Here is Messer Feather-Cap with his courage grown. Here, two of you bind him to the mule."

But the men with him were in no mood to obey, and one of them openly said: "It is always thus with the ancient Brico."

"Do you intend to give me the pleasure I seek," I asked, "or has the ancient Brico taken off his heart with his comrade?"
For a moment it looked as if he were about to ride at me; but my sword was ready, and I was standing too close to him for any such treachery to be carried off. Flinging the reins, therefore, to the neck of his horse, he dismounted slowly and drew his sword. A number of the townsfolk, attracted by the scene, so far forgot their fear of the foragers as to collect around us, and in a few moments a ring was formed, one portion of which was occupied by the troopers.

Brico took his stand so as to place the sun in my eyes, a terrible access, for we should have fought in the moonlight; yet I made no objection, and, grasping my cloak let it fall to the ground behind me.

"A vow!" he called out, and the next moment we engaged in the lower circle, my opponent, for all his French cry, adopting the Italian method, and using a dagger to parry. For a few seconds we tried to feel each other, and I was delighted with the balance of my sword. It did not take me half a minute to see that he was a child in my hands, and I began to rapidly consider whether it would be worth the candle to kill him or not. Brico, who had commenced the assault with a stamp of his foot and a succession of rapid thrusts in the lower lines, became aware of his weakness as soon as I did, and began to back slowly. I twice pricked him over the heart, and his hand began to shake so that he could hardly hold his weapon.

"Make way there," I called out, mockingly, "the ancient would like to run a little." Maddened by this taunt, he pulled himself together, and lunged recklessly at me in fierce; it was an easy parry, and with a strong blow I disarmed him. He did not wait, but with the rapidity of a hare turned and fled, not so fast, however, but that I was able to accelerate his departure with a stroke from the flat of my sword.

"Adieu, ancient Brico!" I called out after him as he ran on, followed by a howl of derision from the crowd, in which his own men joined.

It was lucky that I adopted the course of disarming him, for, had the affair ended otherwise, I doubt not that the men-at-arms would have felt called upon to avenge their leader, potroon as he was. As it happened they enjoyed his discomfiture, and an old trooper called out to me:

"Well fought, signore—you should join us—there is room for your sword under the banner of Tremouille. What—no? I am sorry; but go in peace, for you have rid us of a cur."

Saying this, he rode off, one of his number leading the ancient's horse by the bridle. I turned now to look for my companion. He was nowhere to be seen, and on inquiry I found that he had lifted the girl up, and, supporting her on his arm, the two, followed by the dog, had turned down by the church, and were not in view. It would, no doubt, have been easy to follow, and as easy to trace them; but I reasoned that the man must have purposely done this to avoid me; and after all it was no business of mine, and therefore returned my sword to its sheath and walked on.

CHAPTER V.

D'ENTRANGUES SCORES A POINT.

Before I had gone fifty paces, however, I became aware that there was some law left in Montevarchi, for a warning cry made me look over my shoulder, and I saw a party of the city guards, who had discreetly kept out of the way when Brico and I crossed swords, hurrying towards me. The same glance showed me that the ancient was already in their hands, and was being dragged along with but little regard to his comfort; and I felt sure that now, as the troop was gone, the citizens would wreak their vengeance on this hen-roost robber, and he would be lucky if he escaped with life. As for me, the catpools being out, they no doubt reasoned that they might as well net me. To stop and resist would only result in my being ultimately overpowered, and perhaps imprisoned; to yield without a blow meant very much the same thing, and, in the shake of a drake's tail, I resolved to run, and to trust to escape to my turn for speed. So I set off at my roundest pace, followed by the posse, and the rabble who had a moment before were cheering me.

More than once I felt inclined to turn, and end the matter for myself; but the fact that this might mean laying aside all chance of settling D'Entragues urged me to my best efforts. Some fool made an attempt to stop me, and I was compelled to slash him across the face with my sword, as a warning not to interfere with matters with which he had no concern. I hardly knew where I was going; but dashed down a little by-street, and was, after a hundred yards, brought to a halt by a dead wall. I could barely reach the top of it with my bare hands, but luckily this was enough to all me to draw myself up, and drop over to the other side just as the police reached within ten feet of me. I did not stop to take note of their action, but was off as soon as my feet touched the ground, and found to my joy that I was close to one of the un-repaired breaches in the city wall, made six months ago by Tremouille's ramon. Through this I rushed, and scrambling down a slope of broken stone and mortar, found I would be compelled to climb down very nearly a hundred feet of what looked like the face of a rock, before I could reach level ground. There was not even a goat track. My agility was, however, spurred on by hearing shouts behind me, and preferring to risk death in attempting the descent, rather than fall into the hands of messer the podestà, I chanced the venture, and, partly by holding on to the tough broom roots, partly shipping, and aided by Providence and Our Lady of San Spirito, to whom I hurriedly cast up a prayer, I managed to reach the bottom, and fell, exhausted and breathless, into a cistern ledge.

I was too beaten to go another yard, and, had my pursuers only followed up, must have become an easy prey. As it was I heard them reach the breach, where they came to a stop, all shouting and babbling at the same time. One or two, bolder than the others, attempted to descend the ledge of rock, down which I escaped, but its steepness damped their courage. They, however, succeeded in loosening some of the debris so that it fell over the cliff, and a few of the stones dropped very close to me; but by good hap I escaped, or else this never would have been written. One great block, indeed, just passed over my head, and I vowed an altar-piece to Our Lady of San Spirito, who alone could have diverted that which was coming straight to my destruction; and I may add I duly kept my word.

A time the voices above began to grow fainter, and to my delight I found that the citizens, thinking it impossible I should have escaped like a lizard amongst the rocks, were harking back, and ranging to the right and left. I waited until all sound died away, and cautiously peeped out. The coast was clear. I had recovered my wind, and, without more waste of time, I rose and pressed on in the direction of the hills, determined to chance no further adventures near the town. Indeed, I had crowded more incident into the past few hours than into the previous five-and-thirty years of my life, and my sole object, at present, was to reach Florence without further let or hindrance.

Keeping the vineyards between me and the town, I avoided all observation, and, at a small wayside inn, filled a wallet which I purchased with food and a bottle of the rough country wine, so that there might be no necessity for my visiting a human habitation during the remainder of my journey. With the wallet swung over my shoulder, an hour or so later I was ascending the slopes of Mount St. Michele, cursing the fallen pine needles, which made my foothold so slippery that I slid rather than walked.

It was late in the evening before I halted and ate my dinner under an overhanging rock, sheltered from the north wind by a clump of pines. When I finished I rolled myself up in my cloak, and fatigue, together with a good conscience, combined to send me to a sleep as sound as it was refreshing. I was up before the sun and continued my way, determined to reach Florence by evening. I took no particular notice of the view, where I could see to my right the Prato Magno, and to my left all the valleys of the Greve; but kept my eyes before me, intent on my thoughts.

At length, when passing Impruneta, where the Black Virgin is, Florence came in sight. There was a slight haze which prevented me from seeing as clearly as I could wish; but I plainly made out the houses on the banks of the Arno, Arnolfo's tower, the palace of the Signory, the cathedral, the Bargello, and the unfinished Pitti palace, whilst beyond rose the convent-topped hill of Senario, where the Servites have their monastery.

As I looked there was little of admiration in my heart, although the scene was fair enough; but I could give no mind to anything beyond the fact that I was at last within measurable distance of D'Entragues, and that in a few hours my hand was like to be at his throat.

With these thoughts there somehow mingled up the face of madame, and the scene of our last meeting. I put this aside, however, with a strong hand, and determined to think no more of her, although no such recollection could be anything but pleasant and sweet. Until I met her I had managed well enough without womankind, and for the future I would leave bright eyes alone. Yet I knew I was the better man for holding the privilege of her friendship. However, she had passed out of my life, and across the seas I would have other things to think of than the memory of my platonist friendship with Doris D'Entragues.

It was close upon sunset when I entered the San Piero gate, and found myself in Florence, and in a difficulty at the same time, in consequence of my wearing a sword. I luckily, however, remembered that La Palisse, the French leader, was then in the army, and explaining that I was from the city at Arezzo with a message to him, inquired particularly his abode, which I was told was in the palace of the exiled Medici in the Via Larga. It so happened that La Palisse was in constant communication with Tremouille, and this in my confident bearing imposed upon the guards. I supplemented my argument with a couple of crowns, and they let me pass with the parley. It will thus be seen that, over the regulations may have been, they were easily broken. Indeed I found later on that they were, even at that time, a dead letter, and that the zeal of the guards was merely inspired by the prospect of making something out of me, which they did on this occasion. I knew Florence very well, having been there under circumstances very different to the present; but as I hurried along the crowded streets, I began to feel I was somewhat uncertain as to whether the roads led. I judged it prudent, however, not to make inquiries, but kept my eyes on the sharp lookout for a hostel suitable to my purse, which was as white as a street stall rate. I stopped for awhile at a street stall to satisfy my hunger with a cake of wheat and a glass of milk, a wholesome, but unpalatable beverage, and entered into conversation with the stall-keeper. It came out that I was in a difficulty about a lodging, and the man promptly told me where one could be procured, and added to his kindness, seeing I was apparently a stranger to the place, by directing his son, a small bare-legged urchin, to guide me to the house, which, he said, was an old palace of the Albizzi, that had passed into the hands of the banker Nobili, and was rented out in tenements.

Heaven only knows through what by-lanes and alleys the urchin led me, chattering like an ape the whilst; but at last we reached the house which lay in the street di Pucci. An arrangement was soon entered into with the person in charge, and I paid in advance for two weeks the small rent asked for the room I took. I selected the room, because there was in it some furniture, such as a bed, a table and a couple of chairs, which, I was informed with some emphasis, had been seized from the last tenant in default of rent. I sent the boy away rejoicing, and was surprised to find the housekeeper did not depart as well; but this worthy soon made it clear to me that a further payment was requisite on account of the furniture. I was too tired to haggle, so paid him the three broad pieces he wanted and bid him get me some candles. He returned after a little delay with what I needed, and I may say at once that under a rough exterior I found this man, with all his faults, was capable on occasions of displaying true kindness of heart.

I would like to pay him this tribute, for subsequently, as will be seen, we had a grave difference of opinion which ended in disaster for him. At the time this happened I could not but condemn him strongly, for, in order to further a plot in which he was engaged, he tried to induce me to crime, and when, by a happy chance, I was able to frustrate his design, joined in an attempt to murder me. I fully believe, however, now that I look back on affairs coolly, that, in common with others of his age, he thought it no wrong to adopt any means to further a political plot, whilst in the everyday observances of life he displayed, in an underhand manner, much virtue.

ONLY ONE MAN.

The Pathetic Scene Which Followed the News of a Splendid Victory.

The following touching sketch is written by Kate Whiting Patch, author of "Midwayday."

"Extra! Extra!" ring the shrill voices of the newsboys. "No other victory! Extra, extra!"

A young girl, hurrying through the darkening street, pauses a moment to catch the glad tidings; then, choosing the smallest of the ragged urchins who instantly gather about her, she slips her pennies into his grimy hand and eagerly seizes a paper.

Ten minutes more and she is flinging open the door of a quiet room, where a grave-eyed woman sits by the window, gazing out into the autumn twilight.

"Quick, mother, a light!" rings the impetuous young voice. "I have news from the war. Another victory, and only one man lost!"

A glad cry falls from the mother's lips as she hurries to the table and with trembling hand lights the small lamp. Both faces are eager, strained, as the younger woman reads rapidly the joyful news.

"Only one man lost"—she pauses and the other exclaims "Thank God!" but the paper has slipped from the daughter's hand, the joy has faded from her eyes, the color from her lips. Another instant and the sheet is in the mother's hands. The sudden fear that clutches at her heart tells her the truth before her eyes fasten upon the fatal words—the name of the lost man.

The clock ticks relentlessly in the corner, the fire dies out and the ruddy embers turn gray; the light of the little lamp sinks lower and lower, flickers and is gone. Still the two women cling to each other in the darkness; the silence is unbroken.

Only one man?
Only their whole world!—Chicago Evening News.

The Power of Adaptation.

Lord Seaforth, who was born deaf and dumb, was one day to dine with Lord Melville. Just before the company arrived, Lady Melville sent into the drawing-room a lady of her acquaintance who could talk with her fingers, that she might receive Lord Seaforth. Presently Lord Guilford entered the room, and the lady, taking him for Lord Seaforth, began to ply her fingers nimbly. Lord Guilford did the same. They had been carrying on the conversation in this manner for ten minutes or more when Lady Melville joined them. Her friend said: "Well, I have been talking away to this dumb man." "Dumb!" exclaimed Lord Guilford, "bless me, I thought you were dumb!"—Detroit Free Press.

Sacrificed to Blood Poison.

Those who have never had Blood Poison can not know what a desperate condition it can produce. This terrible disease which the doctors are totally unable to cure, is communicated from one generation to another, inflicting its taint upon countless innocent ones.

Some years ago I was inoculated with poison by a nurse who infected my babe with blood taint. The little one was unequal to the struggle, and its life was yielded up to the fearful poison. For six long years I suffered untold misery. I was covered with sores and ulcers from head to foot, and no language can express my feelings of woe during those long years. I had the best medical treatment. Several physicians successively treated me, but all to no purpose. The mercury and potash seemed to add fuel to the awful flame which was devouring me. I was advised by friends who had seen wonderful cures made by it, to try Swift's Specific. We got two bottles, and I felt hope again revive in my breast—hope for health and happiness again. I improved from the start, and a complete and perfect cure was the result. S. S. S. is the only blood remedy which reaches desperate cases.

Of the many blood remedies, S. S. S. is the only one which can reach deep-seated, violent cases. It never fails to cure perfectly and permanently the most desperate cases which are beyond the reach of other remedies.

S.S.S. For The Blood

is PURELY VEGETABLE, and is the only blood remedy guaranteed to contain no mercury, potash, or other mineral.

Regarding Theatrical Folk and Other People Talked About.

Half a dozen Harrodsburg girls have formed an anti-gossip society. A small fine will be imposed on members guilty of gossiping. Similar societies in every town would be a good thing.

Lewis Morrison expects to start on a two years' tour around the world next June. His repertoire will include "Faust," "The Merchant of Venice," "The Master of Ceremonies," "Richard III," and "Frederic the Great." He will carry a company of twenty-two people.

One of the chief features of the Pan-American exposition to be held in Buffalo in 1901 will be a gigantic representation of a Buffalo. The head will rise 200 feet in the air and the prospective builder would place a restaurant in it. The body of the animal is to contain a vaudeville theatre to seat 2,000 people.

Lillian Lewis, the noted actress, who died last week in Minnesota, was born in Midway, Ky., and began her stage career in 1882. She appeared in "As in a Looking Glass," in this city about twelve years ago, and has played in nearly every city in the United States. She was the wife of Lawrence Marston, and collaborated with him in writing several plays.

Miss Julia Dent Grant, grand-daughter of Gen. Grant, who is to wed Prince Cantacuzene, of Russia, has received two offers of marriage from Prince-a since her debut. Count of Turin, third in succession to the throne of Italy, offered to renounce his claim to the throne for Miss Grant, but she refused to permit the sacrifice. The marriage will occur on September 15th at All Saints Chapel in Newport, R. I. Mrs. Potter Palmer, aunt of the bride, will give her a dowry of $500,000. The wedding trousseau is being made in Paris.

He Sized Them Up.
"He was 6 years old and engaged in chemical experiments," says the Hartford Courant in speaking of President Hadley of Yale.
"Lacking an ingredient, he appealed to the heads of the household. 'Mother, have we any carbonate of soda in the house?' 'I don't know' (indifferently). 'Father, have we any carbonate of soda?' 'I don't know, my son' (still more indifferently).
"The young philosopher pondered the replies and then gave judgment. 'I know the reason why neither my father nor my mother can tell whether there is any carbonate of soda in the house. Mother does not know what carbonate of soda is, and father does not know what is in the closet.'"

From a Masculine Standpoint.
"It's queer," said the young widow, "that poor dear John never said a word to me about remarriage. I really can't understand it."
"I don't see anything so very remarkable about that," rejoined her bachelor uncle. "I suppose you are not the one he thought it was his duty to warn."—Chicago News.

A Forecast Set Aside.
"My wife was sorry when her poodle was brought back."
"Wasn't she fond of him?"
"Yes, but she had told all the neighbors that she knew she would never see him again."—Chicago Record.
